NEWSPAPER HISTORY
The Rockland Gazette was established in 1846. In 1874 the Courier was established and consolidated with the Gazette in 1882. The Free Press was established in 1855 and in 1891 changed its name to the Tribune. These papers consolidated March 17, 1897.

+ Duty is the sublimest word in the English language.—Robert E. Lee.

ONE YEAR AGO

From the files of The Courier-Gazette we learn that:—

Jon Lindbergh, son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, came across the bay in the Mouette bound for Englewood, N. J., at the completion of his summer's stay at North Haven. His parents were in Finland on their world tour.

Ground was broken for a two-story addition to the Munsey Motor Mart on Limerock street.

Harry A. Mather sold his residence on Purchase street to Dr. Rupert Stratton.

William H. Clough, 93, died at his home in Rockport.

John H. Flanagan of the Rockland postoffice staff died at the age of 63. Mrs. William S. Hemingway, 86, died at the Home for Aged Women.

A UNION FAIR ACT

Los Castillos Have Appeared Before Distinguished Audiences in Europe

An exceptional novelty will be presented at Union Fair next week by Los Castillos, a very pretty young lady and a lithe young chap. There is an offering which embraces posing, acrobatics and hand balancing.

This act is carefully routine, opening a series of artistic poses, which are swiftly followed with a snappy line of original and difficult acrobatic and hand balancing feats. Both members of this surpassing duo in turn become the understander, the young lady in this splendid offering displaying remarkable strength and endurance.

Los Castillos are a recent importation, having appeared in all the principal cities in Europe and South America where their efforts met with unprecedented success.

CEMENT FOR LABRADOR

The demand for cement, manufactured at the Thomaston plant, is far reaching, but the record was probably broken this week when a carload was sent to Portland for shipment on a schooner belonging to the Grenfell expedition. It will be used in the construction of a missionary building in Labrador.

AN ELECTION QUESTIONED

There is to be a ballot inspection in Waldo County at the request of Ralph L. Cooper of Belfast, who was the Democratic candidate for State Senator. Roy L. Fernald of Winterport was elected on the face of the returns. There will be no recount for sheriff, the election of Hiram Burgess being conceded, by his opponent.

"THE FIGHT IS STILL ON"

Mrs. Quimby's Address Inspires State Convention—"We Shall See What We Shall See" She Tells the Maine Delegates

A NEED OF THE HOUR

(The Outlook)
"God give us women. These times are sore,
No woman ever faced the like before.
Women we need, with wealth of mind and gifted;
Women who will not swerve nor shirk their task,
Women with hearts to heaven uplifted,
Women with faith a vaster good to ask.
Brave women—this no time to falter—
Who dares be vainly weak or idly gay?
When placed upon the Nation's altar?
The women's noblest, best, God wants today!
Spurn, then, to live in ease or pleasure
Justice would have your richest treasure.
O women, like Deborah of Holy Writ,
Be glad, in peace or war, to do your bit!"

With the battle is on. We shall continue to take the offensive under the safe banner of the Lord of Lords and the King of Kings. From our knees we will go forth to battle, clad in the armor of courage and faith with the sword of education and the shield of righteousness.

We still have statutory prohibition in Maine. Nearly a score of statutes protect the people of Maine against the unbridled liquor interests. Our Governor desires the quick replacement by some method that will make legal the obtaining of liquor in Maine. "We shall see what we shall see."

—Extracts from annual address of the State President, Mrs. Althea G. Quimby.

Yesterday's Proceedings

The convention opened at the First Baptist Church, with Mrs. Althea G. Quimby presiding. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Elizabeth Knight of Westbrook. Greetings were extended by Mrs. Hope Brewster, president of the local W.C.T.U., voicing a cordial welcome to convention guests.

Mrs. Quimby gave as the watchword of the convention: "We will work harder than ever." The roll call showed all general officers present and most of the executive board—an unusually large attendance at an opening session even with the bad traveling conditions of the day before.

Greetings from the National president, Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, were read.

The membership of the Maine W.C.T.U. shows an encouraging gain, despite the unusually heavy inroads made by death. As reported by the corresponding secretary, Mrs. Alice Bigney of Greenville, there are now 3497 active and 208 honorary members, and 22 loyal temperance legions have been organized. The Union has circulated 171 petitions and 271 Union Signals are taken.

Mrs. Vena L. Johnson of Portland, the State treasurer, showed that all bills have been paid and there is a balance to the Union's credit. More than $7000 has been expended. Not one investment has been lost. Lincoln County is the one county that has paid all of its budget.

Greetings and thanks were sent to Col. Fred N. Dow, for his pre-election statement, and to the national workers who came to Maine to assist in the campaign.

The Department of Evangelistic Work was presented by Rev. Ruth E. Walsh, of Allagash, who called upon unions and members to put more stress upon proper preparation and sincere observance of the noonday prayer.

A vast amount of campaign literature was distributed, according to Miss Elise J. Hannaford of Portland, in charge of that department. Increased subscriptions to Union Signal, Young Crusader and Star in the East were urged.

The names of 90 deceased members were read at the memorial service, the delegates from the various counties rising as the names of their former associates were heard. Rev. Ruth Walsh sang "Somewhere" in memory of the late Beulah S. Oxtom, a former president of the Knox County W.C.T.U., at the request of Mrs. E. M. Lawrence.

Mrs. Lawrence and her husband were presented to the convention. "We did not lose," said Mrs. Lawrence, "because we have not quit." Said Mr. Lawrence, "With every-

AN OLD FASHIONED STORM

Rainfall Of 8.4 Inches Officially Recorded At Mirror Lake—Some Happenings

When Tuesday's rainstorm ceased, along about 8 o'clock that night there were not many persons in Knox County who were not convinced that the drouth had been broken.

Cellars flooded, roads washed out, bridges carried away—these were just a few of the mishaps attendant upon the worst rainstorm that has been poured onto the good old State of Maine since July 9, maybe you remember what year. It was a long time ago, but the older readers of this paper have not forgotten.

It was well that the no-school bell rang—otherwise the C.W.A. and the E.R.A. would have been obliged to fit out the pupils with diving suits and canoes. The raging torrent which swept across upper Summer street left that road impassable, and a city crew fenced it off. The brook which winds its way past the McLain building and High School building has always been over lavish in its offerings during a big storm, and those who attended school in that vicinity a few decades ago will readily recall the lake which formed in the vicinity of the old Simon Trueworthy place on Beech street.

There was another section of the city which got more than its share of H₂O, and that was Pleasant Gardens, sometimes referred to as "Back Bay." Tuesday it was a bay, all right, and not a few of the residents were compelled to use a boat in getting to and from their homes.

From many sections of the county came reports of roads being washed out, and from Rockport word that three bridges had left their peaceful moorings. On the Rockport end of Lake avenue there was a landslide of considerable proportions about 4 p.m.

And from Rockport comes the prize storm story, vouched for by such reputable citizens as Town Clerk Charles L. Vezie.

It is not uncommon for grass to grow in the streets of some towns, but it is doubtful if there are many municipalities where they catch live eels in front of the postoffice on the main street. And that's exactly what Tuesday night when the rushing torrent which passed through that street had partially subsided. Great was the excitement as the bystanders made a rush for the slippery and squirming creatures. Nothing like it since the last Carnival Regatta.

When the fishing was over the eels were presented to a local restaurant proprietor.

The July 9 storm to which reference has been made saw a 12-inch rainfall and did a tremendous amount of damage all over Knox County—particularly at Camden, where two large bridges were washed out.

Tuesday's rainfall was 8.4 inches according to Orville Brown, who is official observer at the Government's station in West Rockport. Before this deluge there was eight feet of water over the Camden & Rockland Water Company's intake at Mirror Lake. Today's registry showed 11 feet, and that beautiful sheet of water is beginning to look more like itself.

Chickawakee Lake had gone low because somebody had neglected to close the outlet. This oversight was remedied two days before the storm, and that body of water is also back to its normal condition, for which the ice companies are duly grateful.

Even a storm of these dimensions has its humors. At the water company's office the telephone bell rang, and the clerk heard the excited voice of a woman on the other end of the line.

"There's water in my cellar," she exclaimed. "Come right down and fix it."

The official was sympathetic and tried to reassure her by saying that there was water in lots of cellars, and that there would continue to be until the tide went down, and the rain ceased.

"But I guess I pay water rent enough to have something done about it," was the insistent reply.

Finally the tide did go down, and the rain did stop, and lots of busy people are trying to make their cellars look civilized again.

Ordinarily there is not much sympathy for those smelly animals called skunks, but a couple of schoolgirls watched with interest to see how a young one and its mother would fare when driven from beneath a Granite street barn by the rising waters. The mother swam to safety and then chattered to her offspring. The observers could not understand what was being said, but had every reason to believe skunk conversation would naturally be strong language. Anyhow it worked, and the little fellow also swam to safety.

Work according to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union plans. In advocating increased membership Mrs. Quimby had this to say about prohibition:

"Under the realignment of the liquor traffic—no longer an outlaw, but re-established under the protection and patronage of the Administration—old conditions have returned, and are augmented by the so-called 'new freedom' of young people and the unrestricted liberties indulged in by certain classes of American women.

"A membership campaign is imperative to fill the gaps in our ranks made by the long and growing roll of names of our promoted ones appearing upon our memorial lists. Added to these are other names of one-time members who, perhaps, looked upon the battle as a 'Summer day soldier.'

"We are likely to see a period of liquor advertising in Maine. It will have little effect in the homes where the Union Signal, Star in the East, and the Young Crusader are read. It will be a new experience for the Maine press to increase its income by the glaring advertisements of the legalized liquor business. Let us, too, be quick to offset this new vicious attraction.

"I have checked over the Yes and No votes on repeal of our State Constitution. It is significant that in nearly every town where the Woman's Christian Temperance Union is organized the No vote exceeded by far the Yes vote.

"It was thought by some that following the repeal of National prohibition when the major National political parties deserted the prohibition cause, that the Woman's Christian Temperance Union would start a new party. It has not been the sense of the organization to do so. What will be the decision of the great National Convention that is soon to assemble in Cleveland, Ohio, to honor its 60th birthday, we cannot say. The prohibition party, already organized in many States is receiving renewed support. The Commonwealth party is Lest they drink, and forget the law, and pervert the judgment of any of the afflicted.—Proverbs 31:5.

THE W. C. T. U. IN SESSION

It is to cast back fifteen years to recall the former occasion when Rockland found itself host to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Maine. The present week sees our city in similar manner visited with this honor. Our people are glad to share their hospitalities with these earnest women gathered out of the far corners of the State. They unite in the hope that through the contacts established by the programs of the various meetings shall come not alone continuation, but increase, of the spirit that has long made of this organization one of the world's most formidable agencies in support of the principles which, taking their rise in the home and family, are projected into the wider life of the Nation. We think it will be generally conceded that at no time has there existed a greater demand than now is felt for a country-wide assertion of these things to which the activities of this great organization are dedicated. May its officials and the individual members of it find these meetings heartened by these present meetings, and go home from them with a heightened consecration to the work from which humanity benefits.

FOR THE ARMY AND NAVY

Out of these political districts there fall to be appointed three bright young men to serve their Uncle Sam in positions of honor, two in the Army, the other in the Navy. Recommendation for these appointments will be at the hands of U. S. Senator Hale and Representative Moran, through competitive examinations that are to take place in Rockland and at other points, upon October 20. Prospective entrants for these exams should communicate at once with Messrs Hale or Moran, who will furnish complete information as per the announcement appearing in last Saturday's issue of this paper.

The appointment thus opens to the young man of ambition four years of instruction in the country's foremost, academies, West Point and Annapolis, graduation from which insures a life career, making possible the acquisition of high honors, and at the conclusion of the set term of years, the retiring from active life with a fixed income. This part of Maine has in the past seen itself represented in these branches of service by men who have honored their positions, and to whose lines of succession the winners of these present contests are, to make themselves equally known. They are prizes worth striving for.

THE UNESCORTED WOMEN

Troubles arising out of the public administration of the flowing bowl continue to multiply themselves. The problem with which some of Boston's hotels are now concerned is what to do with the women who insist upon visiting, unescorted, the public bars. There is a law that forbids this bold and unfeminine practice. If you are a perfect lady, and feel yourself yearning for a drink, the legal etiquette of the situation demands that some person of the opposite sex shall stand voucher for your presence there. It is the open violation of this requirement that is causing the Boston licensing board to suspend certain licenses in that city. But that is the way it is when rum and woman get into the game. You wouldn't suppose a real lady would be that thoughtless.

MINDING THE P'S AND Q'S

It behooves a newspaper, as it does the individual, to avoid even the appearance of a slip-up. Accuracy is the thing this paper ever seeks to urge upon its contributors, in the same moment of time that it lays down for itself a similar injunction. It is Boze of the eagle eye who takes to task this column for a discovered error in the preceding issue. Commending what was herein said for the retention of the older names, he adds that it was the "South Side," not "Shore," as the types had it, that earlier designated the waterside at Tenant's Harbor. Whereupon he recalls these old-time geographical designations which we should be glad to learn were still to be found in use.

"On your way," he says, "you would pass through the Harbor, cross the Creek, climb the Hill, pass the Cemetery, then the Head of the Harbor, then the Head of the Lane, where the Neck Road joins the main highway."

This is all attractive nomenclature and we trust remains upon the tongues of today. Haven't we also seen it spoken of as "The Long Lane?" What could be more romantic? It would make a catching title for a book.

RIOTS GET NOWHERE

Rioting in connection with labor disputes is a thing that happily Maine has greatly been spared. We are sorry to see this present manifestation of the senseless practice at Waterville, which has brought certain of the strikers under sentences of the law. The names of these offenders, we notice, are not good Yankee names.

Washington: Mrs. Jennie Price White, president. Organized new union with 25 members and a Y.P.B. Inspire people for temperance through our inspiring speakers. The W.C.T.U. the highest type of Christian work.

York: Mrs. Ruby Grant, president. Two Cleveland six. One union gained 36 new members. "It is the personal touch that counts."

C. A. Mathews of West Lebanon, State director of Flower Mission and Relief Work reported thus:

"A great work has been done the past year by our Flower Mission and Relief Work department. Our needs must increase with the repeal of the 26th Amendment, but we shall be ready to meet it with renewed zeal. We must show our love and sympathy to those needing friendly aid, and carry into places of bereavement and sorrow the fragrant influence of flowers and the hopeful touch of a loving hand."

Increasing interest in the department of Medal Contests has been shown the past year, according to Mrs. Clara S. Emery, the superintendent. Silver medal contests are held in the local unions and gold medal contests in the county unions. Thirteen of the former have been held and three of the latter, with one junior medal contest. "Let us give more time and consideration to the possibilities of this department," said Mrs. Emery in conclusion.

is a graduate from Cornell University and afterward worked in Hull house under Miss Jane Addams. For a time she worked under Eleanor Richards in Boston. In connection with the Massachusetts League of Women Voters she conducted one of the best child welfare groups in the State. She has been a world traveler.

Mrs. Ruby A. Grant of North Berwick, speaking for the department of Temperance and Missions, said that seven World's W.C.T.U. organizers have been employed in 22 countries the past three years and that nearly $20,000 has been contributed through Light Line Unions. Maine has 22 of these Unions and is entitled to life membership in the world's organizations.

Last night there was special music by Mrs. Kathleen Marston. Greetings for the churches were extended by Rev. J. Charles MacDonald of the First Baptist Church. "I trust," he said, "that the State of Maine and churches of Maine will catch a vision from this convention that shall show them the way out from the dilemma they are now in. When the American people have a chance to count the cost of Repeal, they will turn quickly to the protection of the Prohibitory law."

Supt. E. L. Toner extended greetings from the school department of the City of Rockland. "A large part of the fight you will have to carry on in the future will have to be borne by the teachers in the public schools. It is proper that they should," he said.

Greetings from the city were extended by Mayor LeForest Thurston who said it was his desire to work with all organizations regardless of political party, who were striving for cleaner, better living conditions. Would give a few suggestions, keep a check up on your city government, its police, public officials, judges. When you have a complaint to make, make it yourself to the proper officials. And when you approve of their acts let them know it."

The response was by Mrs. Annie M. Barnes (wife of Justice Charles Barnes) of Houlton. "Prohibition is not our objective, it is education, and the Woman's Christian Temperance Union is ever seeking the best and wisest way of imparting this so much needed Education in Alcohol."

A duet was sung by Mrs. Kathleen Marston and Harold Green. The interest of the delegates centered upon the annual address of Mrs. Quimby, and they felt well rewarded with the inspirational utterances which it contained. The address follows:

The year 1934 is a memorable date upon the Woman's Christian Temperance Union's calendar. For in November the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union will celebrate its 60th birthday. As an organization we have witnessed many stirring scenes during these six decades. Wars and rumors of wars have been woven into the fabric of our history. We have shared in every outstanding episode of the past years; and the "piping times of peace" brought us no success in the battle we are waging. Today we still march steadily onward in our endeavor to "dissect the alcohol nerve from the body politic." Sixty years ago the mothers of this Nation dedicated themselves to a great cause and with only faith and prayers as weapons went out in a great crusade to protect themselves and their children against dangers of the liquor traffic.

These Crusaders prayed for deliverance from the curse of drink, and God took the hearts of the women, fused in the white heat of the Crusade fires, laid them on the anvil of His providence and fashioned what He would—a weapon for His hand, a vessel for His service, a crown for His brow and called it the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

So today we pray as they followed Thee, so may we follow them. As Thou blessed these crusaders of long ago, bless Thou us in a new crusade to complete their task.

One of the agents of the liquor trade on being asked what feature of the work of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union to which he most objected, replied, "Your educational work with the young; we fear and hate that." No more convincing argument, praise or urge for the activity on this line could be given.

By the same token may I call to your attention the value of legal prohibition of the liquor traffic. It is ever and always fought by the liquor interest. For its destruction they do not hesitate to spend their millions and are ever seeking to ridicule its supporters. Unworthy politicians are lured by their gold and hesitating ones are clothed in silence, fearing to injure their prospects or their business.

Crucial days are these in the long drawn out battle of the home against the liquor traffic, days when we do well to recall our Crusade heritage of unparallelled faith and unconquerable courage. When events seem to presage defeat, then is the time for immediate action. The spirit of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union is well likened to that of Marshall Poch, who at the historic crisis at the Marne said, something like this: "My left is broken, my right is in retreat, my back is against the wall—the situation is excellent, I shall advance."

With us the battle is on. We shall continue to take the offensive under the safe banner of the Lord of Lords and the King of Kings. From our knees we will go forth to battle clad in the armor of courage and faith with the sword of education and the shield of righteousness.

Certainly repeal of prohibition has not brought to the Nation sobriety or business prosperity. Now must the State of Maine dip itself in the mire and muck of the liquor business because a small percent of the voters of Maine have cast their ballot for the repeal of the 26th Amendment to our State Constitution. Reviewing the votes cast on September 10th in Maine 289,500 votes were cast for Governor. For repeal of the 26th Amendment to the State Constitution 98,442 votes were cast; 56,883 votes were cast for retention or in all 155,325 votes were cast for and against repeal leaving 134,102 voters who did not vote either way on the repeal of the 26th Amendment. This Amendment was repealed by the paltry vote of 98,442 or about 30% of the people who voted marked their ballots on the repeal and referendum questions. No one can ever say that the people of Maine have spoken. They can only say that the Constitutional Amendment was repealed by a minority of the voters of the State while the majority of the people did not vote at all on the question. This is no complacency to the people of Maine and shows a marked indifference or misunderstanding of the matter. Had every man or woman who cast his or her ballot voted on the repeal, the result might have been far different than what it is today.

It is to be noted that in nearly every town in the State where the Woman's Christian Temperance Union is organized there was a large majority vote for retention on the 26th Amendment. It is a challenge to us for a more complete organization. It is a reproach to the indifferent voter and an urge to every woman in the State to join the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and become familiar with the "propositions" that are put before the voter on election day. We are proud and glad to be a part of the 56,000 who voted for this home protection law.

Oh, consistency thou art a virtue. Maine is about to legalize the sale for a revenue of that which takes away restraint, damages judgment and eye sight, stills caution and at the same time it will convict those whose money it takes in revenue, if perchance such one shall, while under the influence of that which is sold to them by the States, commit crime, misjudge distance or color and take the life of an innocent traveler upon our highways.

Some newspapers are saying the quicker the better. Shall we hasten the spending of money needed for necessary expenses, the befogging of the brain, the neglect of the child, the danger upon our highway that the revenue may come to the State as quickly as possible?

From nearly every State in the Union, from far away Australia came the appeal that Maine retain its law as a beacon for other states and nations to follow. Not the admonitions of the young—a program which must not flag, leadership of courageous men and women who have put truth above commercial gain—for years a generally dry press—and a law which embodied the fruits of these endeavors. To lose this law is to lose the advantage ground gained in a struggle of half a century against a social and economic enemy.

Who are the most concerned, first the tax payers. They cannot hope to avoid taxes from increased poverty by a temporary income from blood money. Liquor income taxes are a great disappointment from every state where the spigots have been opened.

Second—schools, churches, public institutions which are working to improve the health, raise the moral standard and create a better social State in which to live. Their teachings have always been that man's taste for alcohol must be restricted, curbed, prevented in every possible way. I maintain that legal prohibition as exemplified in the 26th Amendment to our State Constitution is the best method that has yet been found.

Third—the homes, the mothers and children. Ah, these are the ones who will suffer the most as the ballots were cast on September 10th. We have not kept the heritage of the Maine home sacred! "He is a son of Maine" has ever been an encomium of distinction. He was reared in a home which was protected by a state law against the invidious greed of liquor, his childhood footsteps took him past no saloon. Rum was not made attractive to his tastes of adolescence. His school and college days were spent in a commonwealth where temperance and abstinence were made easier by the protective legislation of prohibition. There were tears not cheers for the mothers and children of Maine, September 10th.

We still have statutory prohibition in Maine. Nearly a score of statutes protect the people of Maine against the unbridled liquor interests. Our Governor desires the quick replacement by some method that will make legal the obtaining of liquor in Maine. "We shall see what we shall see."

The Gold Medal speaking contest was directed by Mrs. Clara S. Emery. The contestants were Robert Miles, Portland; Charles Emery, Rockland; Alfred Chapman, Thomaston; Everett Ellingwood, Gardiner; Dorothy Sherman, Rockland. The judges were Mrs. Evie Morlen Studley, Lincoln County; Mrs. Blanche Sampson, Franklin County and Mrs. Henrietta Irish, Androscoggin County. The decision was given to Everett Ellingwood on the selection "A Bottomless Jug" a true story of Oxford County, Maine. It was a very close contest.

Rev. and Mrs. Philip Hughey favored the audience with a duet. Mr. Hughey is a former Rockport pastor and Mrs. Hughey is the daughter of musical director, Mrs. Ruth Walsh.

The delegates enjoyed a sightseeing tour yesterday afternoon through the courtesy of the Chamber of Commerce. Motor cars were provided by the service clubs.

RUFUS WASHINGTON TEEL

The many friends of Rufus Washington Teel, 96, are grieved to learn of his death which occurred Sept. 11 at his late home on Teel's Island, after an illness of two months.

Mr. Teel was born at Teel's Island April 2, 1838, son of Joseph and Abigail Teel. He was married to Thankful Arey of Winter Harbor, and 12 children were born to them, 11 of whom are now living. They were all with him during his illness and until the end came. Those he leaves to mourn are: Mrs. Rose Atkins, Mrs. Lew Pease of Martinsville; Mrs. Fannie Wilson, Mrs. Florence Simmons, Port Clyde; Mrs. Alice Trebilcock, Philadelphia; Walter Teel, Henry Teel, Sumner Teel of Port Clyde; Oral Teel, Round Pond; Fred Teel, Loudville; and Iradell Teel of Medomak. He also leaves 32 grandchildren and 33 great-grandchildren.

He was laid to rest Sept. 14 from his late home on the island, interment in the family lot. Rev. Sidney Packard of Boothbay officiated. The floral tributes were beautiful and the funeral was largely attended.

Among those present were Miss Mary Field and friend of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Watts and friends of Tenants Harbor, Mr. Poland of Round Pond, D. L. Diplock and family, Augusta, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Burns of Friendship, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Erickson and family of Boston and Magee Island, and B. H. Wetherbee of Yonkers, N. Y. and Boston, who has been spending the summer on the island, a friend of the family for many years.

JUST AHEAD

Back in the tender days of long ago I used to wander with my father dear. My hand in his, and oh, he loved me so! I was content; I had no harm to fear. One day we wandered far and lost our way.

Well I remember what his dear lips said: "Child, I will find the path, and you must stay."

I waited for him very patiently; I knew no fear—I was so confident. He'd only gone to clear the way for me; He would return the very way he went. When he came back he found a tired child.

He carried me safe on his loving breast; He spoke to me; his voice was sweet and mild: "Dear little one, we're going home to rest."

Father, the years have borne you in their flight; To God's Own Land. They say that you are "dead."

I know you're searching for the Path of Light; You've only gone a little way ahead: You'll come for me. Ah, very well I know!

My feet are tired, heavy is my load. You left me waiting. Dear, you loved me so. You'll come back for me when you've found the Road.

—Florence Belle Anderson.

In an attempt to bolster up the weak spots in preparation for their clash Sunday with the Westbrook Huskies, the Rockland Shells, local semi-pro football team will try out several new men this week in order to present the strongest possible lineup. The game will mark the opening of the home season for the Shells and a large gathering is expected to be in attendance as Ladies' Day will be observed with all of the gals accompanied by escorts being admitted free. The game will start at 2.30.

Col. E. K. Gould speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Rockland Lions Club yesterday gave another installment of his trip to California where he attended the Knights Templar Triennial Conclave. His interesting sidelights have been converted into a fascinating lecture which will eventually appear in these columns in serial form. Guests yesterday were Earle Conant, who is a member of the Burlington, Vt. club; C. Fraser Shaw of St. Johnsbury, Vt.; Chas. D. Gould, Percy Blaisdell and Harris Miller of Rockport. It was voted not to employ outside agencies in putting on a public entertainment later. There will be no meeting of the club next Wednesday, because of Union Fair.—The Camden-Rockport Lions Club has changed its meeting night from Wednesday to Tuesday.

During the absence of Mrs. Maude Blodgett, worthy matron of Golden Rod Chapter, O.E.S., for the week, any matters pertaining to the Star meeting attention should be taken up with Mrs. Carolyn Stewart, telephone 1186-W.

Knox Hospital had an unusual patient one day this week when the Belgian police dog which is Jon Lindbergh's companion at North Haven, was taken there to have stitches removed from one of his paws which had been badly cut by some sharp object on the beach. The services of Dr. French were invoked to repair the injuries thus caused, and the canine was then brought here for the purpose above cited. It is understood that the members of the Morrow household, including Col. Lindbergh's son, are leaving the first of the week.

KILLED BY HORSE'S KICK

Robert, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Laine of Cushing was fatally injured in that town this forenoon apparently by a kick from a horse. The boy was brought to Knox Hospital, but was dead before Rockland was reached.

The parents left home this morning for the places where they are employed, the child remaining with the grandparents. The latter heard a commotion outside of the house about 8.30, and ran toward the barn, just in season to see the boy fall unconscious in the doorway. The back of his head was crushed in.

Medical Examiner H. W. Frohock investigated, returning a verdict of death by accident.

down go heating costs!

Today there's a new, completely automatic heating unit that is a modern marvel of heating efficiency and economy.

This new development is the harmonized Delco-Heat Boiler... a product of General Motors. It produces more heat, quicker heat—heat that is clean and odorless. It provides year-round domestic hot water. It shrinks fuel bills to a point you've never thought possible. And here's why.

Instead of mixing cold air with the fuel oil, the Delco-Heat Boiler preheats the air. That means quick-flash combustion... greater efficiency from the start. Then, the famous Delco-Heat Fuel Control automatically regulates the oil to provide just the right mixture of oil and air necessary for complete, efficient combustion.

And, because of a remarkably efficient method of conducting heat through the boiler, more of the heat produced goes into your rooms. Less heat goes up the chimney.

Come in today and see the Delco-Heat Boiler. Let us tell you how you can save on fuel bills. Or, telephone for further information.

ON THE ST. GEORGES

A Paper on Dr. Moses Robinson and the Scotch-Irish, read by Philip A. Hazleton of Freeport at the Robinson Reunion in St. George

(Second Installment)

A certain Mr. Gregg of this settlement was once in Boston doing some trading. A merchant asked him: "How do you folks down east get along? What do you have to eat?" "Oh," Gregg said, "we have roast and boiled every day." "That's better than we do," said the merchant. "If we can have one we're glad to do without the other." "Well," said Gregg, "we have roast alewives and boiled potatoes every meal."

On Sunday and at other times when he had leisure, Dr. Moses taught the children of the settlement their 3 R's. There were probably plenty of occasions when his medical skill was in demand. He administered herb remedies, let blood and pulled teeth. In those days there were few trained doctors even in the large towns of America, and the little settlement on the St. George River was fortunate to have someone at hand with as much medical skill as Dr. Moses possessed.

By 1740 the little settlement was beginning to get well established. There had been a sawmill at the falls from the first. This year a grist mill was built on Oyster River. Evidently the settlers were beginning to grow grain. In this year, too, the first meeting house was built on the western bank of the river about a third of the way from South Warren to Warren village. The old graveyard still remains, and the site is called the "Old meeting-house shore." It was the first clapboarded building, though it was only 30 x 40 feet, without a belfry or ornament of any kind. Services were only occasional for there was no settled minister till 1775.

The "Lower Town", now Cushing, was growing. Dr. Moses' two oldest sons, Joseph and Moses Jr., settled there.

Forced To Abandon Homes
But the life of the settlements was interrupted in 1745 by the beginning of hostilities by the French and Indians. All were forced to leave their homes. Some enlisted for the expedition to capture the fortress of Louisbourg on Cape Breton Island, Canada, others went to Pemaquid or Boston. But more went into the fort at Thomaston, where the men received pay as members of the garrison. Moses Robinson and his family seem to have been there.

In 1747 a large party of French and Indians attacked the fort and tried to destroy it by tunneling under it from the river and blowing it up. But there were heavy rains and the ground caved in. After this there were no other attacks on the fort, but there were always bands of Indians lurking around ready to attack anyone who ventured out of the fort without a heavy guard.

Hostilities were ended in 1749 and people went back to find their houses burned by the Indians or in great disrepair after four years' abandonment. The cattle which ran wild in the woods had been mostly killed or driven away. The mills had been burnt. The lead sashes in the church windows had been taken out for bullets, but strangely enough, the glass had been carefully piled up unharmed.

Trading Post Resumed
Attempts were made by the government to get the Indian tribes in a friendly state of mind toward the English settlements. The fort at Thomaston became again a trading post, where the Indians could exchange their furs for the supplies they needed. In 1752 representatives from all the eastern tribes gathered at the fort for a conference with commissioners from the Massachusetts government. Moses Robinson, Joseph Robinson and many other local people attended the conference. The treaty was renewed which gave the white men the right to settle as far as the salt water flowed and the Indians the rest. Presents were given the Indians, a salute fired, English and Indians gave three cheers, and the Indians went away to have their feast and dance. Many of the local settlers signed the ratification of this treaty as witnesses, among them Moses and Joseph Robinson.

But the peace was not for long. For in 1755 started the last French and Indian war. For a time the government hoped to keep at peace with the Penobscot tribe. They still came to the fort to trade. But to many of the people all Indians looked alike. They were suspicious of the Penobscots, and would take potshots at those that were going to or returning from the fort if they got a chance.

Indian Friends Slain
One day Capt. James Cargill came over from Newcastle with a company of men. They were joined by some of the local men and went out looking for trouble. Near Owl's Head they came upon a young Penobscot couple, with a small baby. They killed all of them, in spite of the mother's pleas that the child be taken to Capt. Bradbury at the fort. Capt. Bradbury had been a great friend and defender of the Penobscots. Going on, the scouting party came

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep...Vigor...Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up at night, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and distasteful urination. If kidneys don't empty 4 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS... a doctor's prescription... which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS... the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-McMillan Co.

upon another group of Penobscots and killed nine. When they came into the fort with the scalps there was great sorrow there, especially among the young women who had considered the Penobscot squaw, Margaret Moxa, as their dearest friend. She had often warned them of the movements of hostile Indians. All the better people of the settlement condemned this crime. The perpetrators were tried in Boston. But as usual a white jury would not convict white men of murder in killing Indians, even friendly ones.

The settlers were better prepared to withstand the Indian attacks this time, and no one left the settlement as they had in the previous war. A whole range of blockhouses was built along the river with a stockade around them. Moses Robinson lived in one of these blockhouses. In the Lower town, Lieut. Benjamin Burton had built a stone fort.

French Driven Out
In this year of 1755 many of the men of the settlement were in a company of rangers which were scouting to the eastward all summer and fall, keeping a watch on the Indians. Moses Robinson and five of his six sons were in this company.

The French were driven out of North America by this war and the power of the Indians was broken to such an extent that they no longer troubled the white settlements. Many new settlers came into the town from Massachusetts in the 1760s, and prosperity increased. Now that General Waldo was dead many of the people went to Boston themselves with their cordwood and did their own trading. Coasters went along the coast selling provisions and all manner of merchandise. But most of the men still dressed in summer in the rough tow-cloth or linsey-woolsey garments, made of the flax or wool which they had raised, and which their women-folks spun and wove. In winter they wore deer or sheepskin. Only a few had dress suits and those were made to last a long while.

Dr. Moses died in the winter of 1763-64, leaving his farm in Warren to his youngest son, William. His other sons, Joseph, Moses Jr., Hanse, John, and Archibald, all had settled in the Lower town.

A Patriotic Family
All of the Robinsons were ardent patriots in 1775. The Scotch-Irish were always an independent lot and never did have any love for the English. Moses Robinson Jr., and Hanse Robinson were members of the committee which took charge of the town's affairs, kept in touch with revolutionary leaders in other towns, and dealt with people that were suspected of being Tories, that is favorable to the British. William Robinson joined the American army at Boston, and later joined the expedition which went to take Castine from the British under Gen. Wadsworth. He was in the army three years. Hanse Robinson was major of the local militia throughout the war.

The chief value of learning how our ancestors lived is the perspective we get on the problems of our own day. When we contrast our own difficulties with those faced by the pioneers, ours do not seem so large. We need to get some of the spirit with which they courageously faced the labor of hewing homes out of the wilderness. Twice they had to leave their farms because of Indian wars. There were insect pests and bad weather to spoil their crops in those days too. But in the midst of all difficulties they continued to have faith in their own future and that of their country. ROCKPORT

Ralph Blakely left Sunday for Chicago where he will visit relatives for two weeks.

Due to the severe storm Tuesday the "no school" signal was blown at 7:30 a. m. and 12 m.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wooster and daughter Nancy of Bangor, spent the weekend with his parents, Capt. and Mrs. Charles H. Wooster.

Despite the storm, 11 members met at the home of Mrs. Mildred Rhodes Monday evening for the regular weekly session of the Trytohelp Club. Next week's meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Wilma Rhodes.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Crockett moved Wednesday morning into the Herbert Mann house, Russell avenue. Mrs. Mann and children will occupy an apartment in Camden for the winter.

Lawrence Snow left Tuesday for Boston to resume his studies at the New England Conservatory of Music. The Nitsumssom Club and their husbands were entertained Monday evening at bridge at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Annis in Camden.

Emma L. Torrey, State Dept. President of the National W.R.C., with her mother, Mrs. Caelida Cain, and Capt. Ernest M. Torrey, returned Monday night from Saco, where Mrs. Torrey conducted a school of instruction. At Winthrop they were joined by Mrs. Effie French, department inspector. It being Mrs. Cain's birthday anniversary she was presented with a nice gift. On Saturday Capt. and Mrs. Torrey and Mrs. Cain also attended the celebration of the Cantons and auxiliaries at Augusta.

The steady downpour on Tuesday did considerable damage to the streets, causing washouts in several places, overflowing bridges and flooding manholes and sewers. The street through the business section assumed the appearance of a river and it was reported that eels carried by the overflow from the Lily Pond were found in front of the Studio Shop and Security Trust Co. block.

Harbor Light Chapter, O.E.S. met Tuesday evening, preceded by picnic supper, with Mrs. Mildred Rider and Miss Helen Small as housekeepers. At the next regular meeting, Oct. 2, the annual inspection will take place and Ivy Chapter of Warren will be special guests. Supper will be served at 6:30.

Byron Rider is mourning the loss of his canoe which was carried away by the heavy current in Tuesday's storm.

WARREN

Work on the E.R.A. allotment for unimproved roads in Warren is at present going on at the Middle Road, with 15 men and three trucks on the project. The 15 employed includes Fred Miller the foreman, and A. O. Spear, time keeper. It is expected that $500 will be the amount to be spent on this road, parts in proportion to be used at other sections of the town, the next place for work to be at West Warren. The town furnishes the gravel in this work.

A special town meeting is to be called Sept. 29 at 1 o'clock standard. Two issues to be decided: A moderator for the meeting, and to see if the town will take over the mortgage of Thomas J. Carroll on the property of Charles Whitney, said mortgage being $100 plus interest, or take any action relating to the same.

Tuesday's heavy rain caused a washout at the foot of Crawford Hill, the brook overflowing the road to the depth of six or eight inches. Anderson Hill was reported to be washed badly also. Brooks everywhere were overflowed equal to a spring freshet, and the river rose 15 or 18 inches during the day, being in the early morning several inches lower than the top of the dam, and at noon running over. Roads were so wet, especially in the outlying districts where in some places water was running into them from streams swollen with the rain, that it was deemed advisable to have one session in the schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Foster returned Tuesday night from a week's motor trip to New Brunswick accompanied by their guests Mr. and Mrs. William Bernard of Milford, N. H.

GROSS NECK

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Jobin who passed the summer here, have returned to Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Simmons and daughter of Bath were visitors Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Simmons.

Charles Genthner has returned home after a visit with relatives in Camden.

Mr. and Mrs. John Johannisson of Waterville were callers last week at William A. Gross.

Mrs. Irvine Genthner and children of Broad Cove have been recent guests of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Engley.

Mrs. Walter Stover was a visitor Saturday at the home of her mother Mrs. Fannie Waltz of West Waldo-boro.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Light, daughter Frances and Miss Alameda Genthner of Camden, Mr. and Mrs. Irvine Condon and Mr. Libby of Thomaston,

Agricultural

Farm Bureau membership is underway. Committee meetings were started this week and will continue the next week. Future meetings are Saturday forenoon, Warren, at E. C. Teague's; afternoon, Waldoboro, at F. M. Johnson's. Thursday evening, Sept. 27 there will be a meeting at Mountain View hall, Rockland Highlands. This will be a district meeting covering Rockland, Rockport and South Thomaston and will be in charge of R. P. Conant, district manager. Friday evening, Sept. 28 there will be a meeting at Camden Grange hall covering towns of Camden, Hope, West Rockport and Simonsville. This meeting will be in charge of Mrs. N. B. Hopkins, district manager. County Agent Wentworth and the home demonstration agent, Miss Lawrence, will attend the meeting in Rockland and Camden to explain the plans of the membership campaign.

Mrs. Amber Childs, Orr's Corner, has a fine bunch of pullets this year. Besides taking care of about 300 birds she has a nice vegetable garden and an especially beautiful flower garden.

Now is the time to obtain poultry accounts for 1935. Mrs. Ralph Light says that without her account book she would not have realized how much her pullets have paid her during the past year. These books are free to anyone in the county. Write County Agent Wentworth, for one of them.

A Knox County pen of hens again wins honors at the State egg laying contest at Highmoor Farm. The pens of Harry Waterman, South Thomaston, tied with each other for second place for the week ending Sept. 11, with 52 points. A pen owned by Parmenter of Franklin, Mass., was first with 56 points.

4-H Club Notes

Orr's Corner Happy Workers and Bean Boys 4-H Clubs held their local contest Sept. 14 in the Community hall. A demonstration on making an apron was given by Esther Light and making muffins by Evelyn Ralph. Both boys and girls finished up their projects having records and stories all complete at the local contest. A story of the season's work was read by Charles Light for the boys and by Esther Light for the girls. Albert Elwell, leader of the boys, took charge of the program.

Owl's Head three clubs, the Wise Owl's, Go Ahead and Snappy Seven met in the Community Library Sept. 15 at 2, to complete their year's work.

Exhibits of sewing, bread and vegetables were on display and judged for their year's work. The boys' club, Snappy Seven, finished 100 per cent. The boys in this club are Carl S. Reed, Jr., Alvin Perry, Lester Emery, Chesley Emery, Peter R. Reed, William Buckminster, James Farrell.

TIE IN BIG FIVE LEAGUE

South Thomaston, Beating Pirates In 10th, Now On Even Terms With Rockport

South Thomaston jumped into a tie with Rockport for first place Sunday as the Big Five League ended its season. It defeated the Pirates in an exciting 10-inning match that saw plenty of thrills.

The Pirates opened the scoring in the third on single by Emery and

Art Makinen, Fanning 16 Men, Saved Day For South Thomaston

Wink and a passed ball netted one run. In the fifth the Keag team scored two runs for a brief lead on a walk, a hit and two errors. The Pirates tied it up in their half of the frame, Karl beating out a nifty bunt. Freeman's sacrifice and Mosher's hit to right.

The Keag team had its big inning in the sixth, filling the bases and here Emery walked two batters to force two scores across, an infield play accounting for another. Bob Gardner was whisked to the scene and struck out the side. The Pirates picked up one in the seventh and tied the score again in the ninth when Mosher opened by walking—Collins grounded and was safe when Mosher beat the play to second. R. Gardner and H. Gardner then pushed them across with hits.

It was here the Pirates had the bases loaded, none out and failed to score further, being cut down on a sensational double play, Baum to Brown, and a strike out.

The Keag team won out in the tenth on A. Makinen's walk, a sacrifice by Montgomery and Brown's long single. It was one of the best games seen on the Keag field this season, features being a play by Hopkins at third base where he had to dive to get the runner and Art Makinen's effectiveness in the pinches. He fanned 16 Pirates.

"ON MY SET"

EUNICE HOWARD
Miss Howard, recently designated by Nazimova, as the out-standing actress she has heard on the air, will resume her role of the vivacious Linda when the "Red Davis" radio sketches return Oct. 1. In contrast to the spirited, rollicking schoolgirl whom she plays in the "Red Davis" series, Miss Howard made her New York debut as the girl in green tights, a music hall soubrette, in Christopher Morley's Hoboken revival of "After Dark," first produced so successfully by Diamond Jim Brady in 1868.

Yachtsmen are having their inning this week, thanks to the America's Cup races between the English challenger Endeavour and the American defender, Rainbow. Yachtsmen did I say? We are all yachtsmen for the moment, and in every family which boasts a radio every ear is bent attentively to the voice of the announcer. Three weeks hence we will all be baseball fans, because the World Series will then be under way.

Miss Mary Haskell is acting as general chairman for the annual Parent-Teacher Association membership drive which is beginning this week. Attention is once more called to the modest dues, 25 cents per year, and to the great amount of good the funds derived therefrom accomplish, such as providing milk for under-nourished school children, shoes and other clothing to enable children to attend school, and establishing a scholarship fund. The meetings of the association, conducted monthly, bring to the city outstanding educators, health experts, and prominent citizens of the State as speakers, their part in the programs augment-

LAST OF THE RIVER FLEET

Story Of the Steamer Castine One That Will Awaken Many Memories

Once upon a time—although this is no fairy tale—23 little steamers plied the Penobscot. Each summer they carried thousands of passengers and mountains of freight.

One by one they disappeared. A few are on other rivers in other States. Some are rotting at their piers. The majority were split into kindling wood and fed to the boilers of the river mills. And now—

Pass through the Maine Central station at the foot of Exchange street, Bangor, thread your way between rows of box cars and over a network of tracks in the railroad yard until you come to the river—and there, waiting demurely for passengers, is the steamer Castine, sole survivor of the once busy fleet.

The Castine is a stylish and self-respecting little lady, and she has kept herself up-to-date. She is still queen; but there are no longer any subjects.

You go aboard, looking for Captain Coombs; and it is a bit confusing at first to discover there are two captains named Coombs—like in many ways, for they are brothers and a love of the little vessel and the shining river is in their blood. Leighton W. Coombs is master; A Perry Coombs chief engineer. Each has a master's license, which gives both the title of captain. They have been partners—usually on the same craft—for 38 years. And in all those years they have never lost a passenger, they have never known an accident, and—both swear this is true, and surely they ought to know—they have never had a business quarrel. One by one they have seen their competitors disappear—swallowed up, for the most part, by business reverses. A certain native shrewdness, an intimate knowledge of river and bay, above all a sheer love of the profession others have looked upon as just a means to a livelihood, enabled them to "carry on."

"There were 23 of these excursion steamers when we began sailing 38 years ago," said Capt. Perry Coombs. "The Castine is the last this side of Rockland. The Mayfield, the Florence, the Silver Star, the Gertie May, the Sedgwick, the Tremont, the Goldenrod, the Ruth, the Verona, the Cimbric, the Queen City and many more—all have gone.

"One by one they disappeared as business dwindled. The Goldenrod, which we once owned—although we sold her to other interests—is falling to pieces at her dock in Castine. The Cimbric is on the Hudson river, and the Ruth—one of the very few not from the Barbour yard in Brewer; she was built at Thomaston—is somewhere in New York state. But most of them were split into kindling and ended in the boilers of mills along the river."

"A tragedy," said the reporter. "Yes," agreed Capt. Perry Coombs. "What was the trouble?"

His brother pointed to the Bangor-Brewer bridge, high above, across which automobiles flowed in an unending stream.

"There is your answer," he replied simply. "People travel now by motor. The world of transportation has changed."

The Castine has her passengers. There are few big excursions, as in the old days; but there are groups who engage the Castine, usually on Sundays, for trips down the most lovely river in this part of the world. Students at the University of Maine summer school, for example; various musical clubs; the Kiwanians not so long ago. Yes—even in this age of motor speed, days of leisure and of beauty on the Penobscot's broad bosom are by no means unknown. The Castine "carries on."

"There was a time," Capt. Leighton Coombs went on, "when a man could walk from Bangor-Brewer bridge to High Head upon the decks of vessels. I can remember seeing 33 on one tow-line—I don't know the tug—the Howell, perhaps, or the Ralph Ross."

Belfast, he saw that they reached their destination—but he promptly reported the circumstances to the commander of the Charlestown Navy Yard, where he sent all of his reports.

What was the purpose of these mysterious signals? He never knew—although he supposed them to be signals to submarines lurking off the coast. Anyway, he served in this way through the war. When it was all over, and the armistice was signed, the government agent came to him and said: "You have done your country a real service." It was the only reward he received—it was the only one he asked.

Both captains told of the ghastly speaking. "Some of my passengers," he said slowly, "have told me the Penobscot leads all rivers in its scenic charm. It is what I believe myself. But in this day of the automobile, of speed and more speed—"

He told, with a little touch of pardonable pride, how he had served, without even his crew or neighbors knowing it, in the World War.

A man that he didn't know, but who identified himself as a government agent, came aboard one day and told him he had been appointed to the secret service.

"How do you know I'll be any good or that I won't betray you?" he asked. "Captain," replied the government man, "if your next door neighbors knew you as well as we do in Washington, you might well be a little proud."

At West Brooksville there lived a man who for his pro-German sympathies, had been expelled from the faculty of a great American university. No good purpose, perhaps, could be served by printing his name at this late date. But it was Capt. Perry Coombs' job to watch him.

There were nights, as his vessel lay at Castine, that he would go to the old fort; and from its summit he could see colored lights flare from the suspect's summer home. They were answered by somebody in Castine, and by someone else in Northport, across West Penobscot bay. Also, when boxes of chemicals were delivered to his little vessel at

Sunday at Munt Desert Ferry more than 30 years ago, when a ferry slip buckled and sank beneath the weight of the throng that stood on it, hurling many to their deaths. They themselves were not very near; they were carrying passengers to the warships in Bar Harbor from another part of the island. But the curious part was that a little later in the day, some of their passengers paid them in money that was still wet—thus showing they had been among those on the fatal slip.

The Castine, as she now lies at her Bangor pier, is 45 years old—but a stranger would never guess it, for she is as clean, as bright, as seaworthy as any craft on the Penobscot. She has a new keel, 11 inches deep and fastened in with bronze metal; she has been kept in fine repair throughout the years; every part of her has been inspected and pronounced sound. Her shining, graceful decks, her comfortable cabins reflect a care that is something more than professional.

"She's just one of the family," the brothers declare.

"We have a great deal for which to be thankful," said Capt. L. W. Coombs. "We have had a wonderful time all our lives, for we love the river and the bay. We have never lost a passenger. We have never had a wreck. The public has been kind—we have met many fine people. We would live our lives in the same way, if we had them to live over."—Oscar A. Shepard in Bangor Daily News.

AT STRAND THEATRE

NOW AND FOREVER

Com' On, People, Let's Have Fun! Carole Lombard, Shirley Temple and Gary Cooper, co-starred in Paramount's drama, "Now and Forever," seem to be all set to go in this combination scene from the picture which is now showing.

Together, these three compose one of the most perfect combinations seen in films. The characters they play are sympathetic, human and entirely believable, and they enact a story that is sincere, with loads of heart-tugs and tears along with the smiles and laughs.

Plainly a born adventurer, Gary Cooper is seen as a carefree chap, who lives by his wits, and hoodwinks every man he meets. Madly in love with Carole Lombard he even permits his cheating methods to cheat her away from him. His little daughter, Pennie, played by Shirley Temple, has been brought up by a guardian. Desperate for money, he even consents to accept cash for his right to his own daughter. That is, until he sees her.

Then he carries her away. Together with Carole Lombard they lead a happy, carefree life, until Cooper is again tempted to stray from the straight and narrow. At this point the child's love and faith in him is vindicated, when, by a noble deed of self-sacrifice, he removes himself from her life and makes happiness possible for her.—adv.

Parents used to worry about daughter's matrimonial chances. Now they just send her to a co-ed school.—New-Advocate.

OUTLOOK IS BETTER

For Poultryman This Fall—Relation of Egg Prices To Feed Costs More Favorable

"The farm price of poultry throughout the fall of 1934 has prospects of being well above that of last year," says R. N. Atherton marketing specialist for the Extension Service. "Farm prices of eggs this fall are likewise expected to be higher," he adds.

In explanation of this forecast Mr. Atherton says, "There has been a moderate pick up in business activity and the price level is somewhat higher. Fewer chicks were hatched this spring and rising egg prices will encourage the poultryman to keep more of his layers. There is a smaller number of layers on farms. The scarcity and high prices of feed will result in a lower production of eggs."

He concludes, "The poultry outlook for Maine is better than last year. The relation between egg prices and feed costs is somewhat more favorable. There is an improved demand and a small supply of poultry products. Maine poultrymen are reacting to this favorable situation by an increased demand for pullets this fall."

"It's mostly you I care for, I care for your money only up to a certain point."

"The decimal point?"—Christian Science Monitor.

PARK THEATRE

"Midnight Alibi," based on the story by Damon Runyan will be the feature attraction Friday. The story is one of the most unique romances that the famous writer has yet conceived, the principal characters being an elderly and aristocratic spinster and a New York racketeer. Helen Lowell, the noted Broadway star, has the former role, and is said to give an outstanding characterization, while Richard Barthelmess has the stellar role of the gangster. Barthelmess has a double role, also playing the part of the spinster's sweetheart of forty-five years before the real story actually starts.

How police combat organized crime, including the burglary insurance racket, is one of the features of "Girl In Danger," which will come for Saturday.

Modern jewel thieves employ a racket which nets them more than they could recover from the sale of the jewels through old-fashioned channels. Learning which company has written the burglary insurance on the gems, through a crooked attorney they communicate with the company, offering to return the jewels on payment of a portion of the insured value. The insurance company, faced with a complete loss unless they comply, many times will pay off the thieves to secure the return of the property. Ralph Bellamy as Inspector Trent, figures out a way to circumvent this profitable racket.—adv.

"I would like to write a novel." "Do you know how to write?" "Oh, I shall use a typewriter."

Republicans, no matter how poor, will have to dig up their own money for the fall campaign. They can't borrow from the seven billions the President has under control.—Toledo Blade.
